

around town

Three new citizens arrived in town recently and here are their introductions:

□ Michael and Barbara Parziale of 11 Bayberry Lane are the parents of a daughter, Carol Ann, born Aug. 20 at South Shore Hospital. She joins Michael, 21, Thomas, 19, Ann, 17, Gary, 13, John, 11, and Joseph, 5, at home. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Parziale of Medford and Mrs. Gordon Thompson of Franklin.

□ Daniel and Joyce Curran of 11 Church St., are the parents of a son, Nicholas Daniel, born Sept. 2, at St. Margaret's Hospital. Their family also includes Derrick, 16, Rebecca, 13, and Martha, 5. Mrs. Regina Curran of Weymouth is the child's grandmother, Mrs. Gladys Sallemme, a native of Cohasset, is great-grandmother.

□ James and Barbara Grant of 14 Holly Lane are parents of a daughter, Hannah Elizabeth, born at South Shore Hospital Sept. 8. They also have two daughters, Erica, 6, and Meredith, 3. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Grant of Abington and Mr. and Mrs. James Mullin of Weymouth. Mrs. Annie O'Donnell of Weymouth is great-grandmother. The Grants moved to Cohasset last May from Needham.

□ Belated birthday wishes are extended to Burt Pratt, of 75 Ripley Road, who gracefully acknowledged his 60th in July. His wife, Helen, and family, Pete and Joy, and good friends, the Herbert Crehan's, the Bill Browns, and the Migliaccios, joined him for a bar-be-que picnic at his home. Pratt works for Dennison Press in Weymouth and in his hometown is well known as Town Historian; he has written two volumes of "A Narrative History of the Town of Cohasset." (He is also a fence viewer!) Many happy returns!

□ Whenever Diana or Allison Kornet ride their bikes to school, their dog Jerry follows along, like the faithful lamb, and good as gold (he's a golden retriever), stays outside the school house door until the girls are dismissed. □ Three former School Committee members were honored last Thursday night at a dinner at the Greenhouse Restaurant, a tradition of long standing with the Committee. Ann Baird, Josephine Mahoney DiGirolamo, and Doris Golden were wine, dined, awarded, and, as expected, "roasted," a little. Their hosts were present School Committee members Jack Langmaid, Diana Kornet, Frank England, Irene Brown, Pat Walsh, Martha Gjestebj, and Dr. and Mrs. John Maloney, and John Raftery.

Doris Golden produced "A Day In The Life of a School Committee Member," which included remembrances of members in a humorous way, as portrayed in a mock meeting, with items like 25-page minutes, and 400-page reports from the Superintendent. Irene Brown likened those present to entrees in a menu, with such delectables as "Gum soup, garnished with life savers" for Josephine DiGirolamo, "Weston fried in saki" for Ann Baird, and "Gray sole," for Doris Gol-

□ What are the past, honored School Committee members doing now with all that leisure time? "I'm winding down and doing things that I never had time to do before," says Doris Golden, a member for six years, and Chairman for five. Josephine DiGirolamo, a member for five years, says she is taking a sabbatical and devoting more time to her family and the Health Spa. Ann Baird, a three year member, is still busy, but pleasantly so, with rounds of farewell parties for her and husband George, for their imminent move to Japan. Mr. Baird will be establishing a new office of Hay Associates, a world wide management consulting firm, in Tokyo.

□ The Nawns leave Cohasset for the second time and after many moves across the country, are hoping this return to Fort Worth, Texas will be permanent. Joanne Young Nawn was the very able author of this column from the first issues of the Cohasset Mariner until August. She also wrote many feature articles, substitute taught in the Cohasset schools, and did freelance writing.

Her husband, John Nawn, is a vice president of Harsco Corp. and of Cantex, a manufacturer of plastics. Their family includes T.G., a fine photographer who will be entering his junior year of high school; Priscilla who lives in Brookline and works for Mass. Financial Services; John who lives and works in Chicago; Christopher, who attends Colorado College; and Andrew, a 4th grader.

□ What's three feet long with a circular disc at the bottom that goes beep-beep-beep at the beach? It's not a solar popcorn popper, but it is a metal detector. If you have ever lost a metal pop-top from your beer or soda can, or an old spoon, loose change, or a ring, try following one of these gizmos around and maybe the thing will turn up your lost item. No guarantees that the 'operator' will give it over to you; they scour miles of sand for 60 cents and maybe an ankle bracelet.

I don't need to spend $30-60 for one of those gadgets, I've got my own. He's about four feet tall and this summer he turned up 13 cents, two gold bracelets, and enough pop-top tops to build 10 metal detectors. He's also good at the dump, but I haven't brought him to compete with the machines at their other favorite haunts — fair grounds, estate sales, and house demolitions!
